

PROJECT OVERVIEW — BUSINESS BRIEFING

Nails Villa

Online Booking Platform for a Personal Nail-Art Studio in Halifax, Nova Scotia

Prepared for internal review
September 2026

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

What we built, in one paragraph

Nails Villa is a real, working website and appointment-booking system for an independent nail-art business. A visitor can browse services, see real prices and durations, book an appointment in under a minute, and receive an instant confirmation — all without a phone call. Behind the scenes, the system is built the way a bank or airline booking system is built: it is technically impossible for two customers to be double-booked into the same time slot, even if they try at the exact same moment.

Where things stand today: the customer-facing website and the full booking engine are complete and have been tested end-to-end, including under real concurrent load. The owner's admin control panel (managing services, hours, and appointments from a dashboard) is the next phase of work.

THE OPPORTUNITY

Why this matters for a small business

Independent, appointment-based businesses like a personal nail studio typically lose potential customers in a few predictable ways: no way to book outside of a phone call during business hours, no visible pricing or availability, and no professional web presence next to larger competitors. Every one of those is a lost booking.

PROBLEM

Booking friction

Customers can only book by calling during open hours, and a missed call is often a lost customer.

SOLUTION

24/7 self-serve booking

Customers see real availability and book instantly, any time of day, from any device.

PROBLEM

No online presence

No way for a new customer to discover services, pricing, or the quality of the work.

SOLUTION

A premium, mobile-first website

A clean, professional brand presence built around converting visitors into booked appointments.

HOW IT WORKS

The customer journey

The entire site is designed around one goal: turning a visitor into a booked appointment, without friction and without requiring an account.

No forced sign-up. A customer can complete a full booking as a guest with just their name, email, and phone number. This is a deliberate choice — every extra step between "I want an appointment" and "I have an appointment" is a chance to lose the customer.

KEY FEATURES

What the platform actually does

Real-time availability

Booking times shown to customers are calculated live from actual business hours, existing appointments, and blocked-off time — never a static calendar.

Double-booking protection

The system is built so that two customers can never be booked into the same slot, even if they submit at the exact same second — verified with an automated stress test.

Flexible pricing per service

Services can be priced as a fixed amount, a "starting from" price, or a range — matching how nail art is actually priced in practice.

Guest or account booking

Customers can book instantly as a guest, or create an account to manage upcoming and past appointments.

Built-in gallery & reviews

A photo gallery and customer review system are fully built and ready — populated as soon as the owner adds real photos and reviews start coming in.

Mobile-first design

Designed to be booked comfortably with one hand on a phone, since most visitors to a personal beauty business arrive on mobile.

Built on a production-grade foundation

This isn't a template or a page builder — it's custom software, built with the same categories of technology used by established consumer booking platforms, chosen specifically so the business can grow into it rather than outgrow it.

- Frontend (what customers see): a modern, fast web application (React) that works identically well on a phone, tablet, or desktop.
- Backend (the business logic): a Java/Spring Boot application — an enterprise-grade platform used by banks, airlines, and large-scale e-commerce systems — handling every booking rule and security check.
- Database: PostgreSQL, an industry-standard, highly reliable database used to store every service, appointment, and customer record safely.
- Security: passwords are never stored in readable form (industry-standard one-way encryption), login sessions use secure, time-limited tokens, and every sensitive action is checked on the server — never trusted from the browser alone.
- Portability: the entire system runs in standardized containers (Docker), meaning it can be deployed to any modern cloud provider without being locked into one vendor.
- Quality assurance: the booking engine has automated tests that run the exact double-booking scenario described above and confirm it can never happen.

100%

Mobile-friendly, one-handed booking

Beyond the numbers, the platform gives the business a professional, trustworthy presence that puts it on equal footing with larger salon chains, while remaining true to what makes it special: a personal, one-on-one nail-art studio. The architecture is intentionally conservative — no experimental technology, no vendor lock-in — so future maintenance costs stay low and the system can keep growing with the business.
